Excerpt: ... As it is my wish to render these letters instructive to the general reader as well as useful to the historian and the antiquary, it will be necessary to give a brief sketch of the state of England and the Continent at the period when they commence. This seems expedient, because they detail events, and contain political reflections, which are not only of English but of European interest; by which expression I mean simply to state that this Work involves illustrations of the history of France, Italy, and Germany, as well as of England. Indeed, it is evident that such of these letters as have been VOL. i. B 2 INTRODUCTION. selected from the correspondence of English ambassadors at foreign courts, must contain more of foreign than of domestic history; but then it is such a portion of foreign history as throws light upon the relations of England with the great Continental powers at an important period of their and her annals. The letters relative to England, commence with the death of Henry the Eighth, and the accession of Edward the Sixth, under the protectorate of his uncle, Edward Seymour, Earl of Hertford, shortly afterwards created Duke of Somerset; and the portion of history which is illustrated in the First Period, is the interval between the death of Henry, Jan. 27th, 1546-7, and the deposition of the Protector Somerset, Oct. 12th, 1549. The great events under the ministry of Somerset stand so prominently forward, that we easily recognise them; we meet first with the war in Scotland, undertaken for the purpose of compelling that nation to give their infant queen in marriage to Edward, and next with the full establishment of the Reformation, through the active agency of Cranmer. Looking to our foreign policy, the Council is seen occupied with negotiat...
